

Dr. Camille McArdle

Dr. Camille McArdle's enjoyment of animals began at an early age with guinea pigs and dogs and horses. After working some years on the race tracks in south Florida, she entered The Ohio State University as an Animal Science major and eventually earned her Doctorate in Veterinary Medicine, as well as a healthy love of football.

Dr. McArdle presently works as Dean of Veterinary Technology for the Globe Education Network, overseeing the program at 21 campuses. In her career she worked as a

Patricia Brenner

My foray in the AKC world began with American Cocker Spaniels. As I X]Xbñ luck out with a "Show Stopper" I ventured into Obedience.

In 1969 I purchased two Champion Golden Retrievers. They became my foundation stock and